ABOUT ME

Motivated Electronics and Telecommunication Engineering undergraduate student at CUET with a strong foundation in digital systems, data communication, and routing protocols. Actively developing expertise in network architectures aligned with CCNA standards alongside hands-on simulation experience in Cisco Packet Tracer. Seeking a Master's degree opportunity to contribute to advanced research in next-generation communication networks and wireless systems.

EDUCATION AND TRAINING

A smart door lock where an RFID card grants access, but the Arduino is deliberately kept out of the decision-making loop. Its only job is reading the card's UID over SPI and outputting a single HIGH/LOW signal. Every control decision after that — unlocking, timed auto re-lock, status memory, alarms, and entry counting — is implemented entirely in 7400-series TTL logic: flip-flops, logic gates, and a 555 timer, with zero software in the control path.
